Roof Gardens Have Made Them Wealthy and Independent.

News and Notes About People the Stage World.

Variety people who last Summer used to flit about Fourteenth street and think themselves lucky if they had two-for-a-cent cigarette to smoke now walk pompously around, brandishing proudly 25-cent cigars, with an air of owning the earth. The roof gardens ave done this for them, and they are just now the most important people in metropolis. "When the Casino oof garden was the only resort of its said Manager Charles Barton, the Casino, vesterday, "we were beneged by variety people, who offered heir services at the lowest salaries, and even, in many cases, begged to be to appear for nothing, on the ground that the advertisement would make them. Now they have grown very make them. Now they have grown very independent, and have tripled their salaries. I have a basketful of letters from third-rate people, who two Summers ago would have jumped at $50 a week, and who now ask for $150, and think they will get it. It is undoubtedly a fact that the demand for good variety people is greater than the supply. It is almost impossible to get them. They are snapped up at once." The "artists" who circulate around Union Square all look happy and prosperous now. They seem to be at ease with themselves and the world. It is the unfortunate disciple of the "legitimate" who finds that the Summer drags terribly.

It is said that the Water Commissioners objected very strenuously to the prismatic fountain that Mr. Hammerstein uses in the third act of "The Talisman" at the Manhattan Opera-House. He has not been able to do justice to his idea. The jets were to be thrown as high as the flies and were to revolve, but the water pressure was not powerful enough to permit of this, and Mr. Hammerstein is obliged to be satisfied with the present condition of things. He claims that the electric-kaleidoscopic effects used with the fountain are his swn invention, and says that he has already made application for letters agent. . . .

Miss Adelaide Prince frou-froued down Broadway yesterday in very fetching attire. Miss Prince, however, does not look theatrical on the street. Her appearance on Broadway was something of a surprise, but it was accounted for by the fact that the austere Augustin is absent. Miss Prince is about to join the Daly company in London.

Miss Clara Qualits, whose ballet dress the "Versailles" divertissement at the anhattan Opera-House caused so much scussion, declares that she has been work for two years upon that dress, here is not very much of it, of course, it the little that there is shows that insiderable labor must have been ex-preded upon it.

J. M. Barrie, author of "The Professor's Love-Story," has been severely reasted for his dramatization of Thack-cray's "Vanity Fair." One English critic says that he has not only done a poor piece of work, but has been guilty of impertinence in laying hands upon Thackersy. Mr. Barrie has introduced into his play Becky Sharp, Joe Ledley, Major Dobbins and Amelia.

happening to spy the proxy ton the proup of sports who block up the side-walk at the corner of Twenty-eighth street and Broadway, Blande walked over and beckoned to him. He took the rotund comedian by the lapel of the coat, and gently led him down the street until they were in front of the Turkish baths. He carefully placed Mestayer over one of the five iron gratings from which the surplus heat of the bath makes its exit to join its sister heat on the outside. Then he proceeded to explain the part Mestayer was to play holding him firmly in position by the aforesaid lapel. At the end of the first act, Mestayer mopped his brow, and looked as though he were about to faint. "How many acts are there?" asked Mestayer, feverishly.
"Three," was the reply.
"Three," said the comedian, who had not noticed the grating beneath his feet, "don't explain them to me, for I feel

And away he went.
Marion Manola and her dear Jack are placidly Summering at their own little home in New Rochelle. They were both seen at the Suburban-Manola in stunning attire—and they both put their money on Lowlander. Their play next season will be "Friend Frits" again, and they are now hunting around for a manager.

They are repaying Twenty-eighth street in front of the Actors Fund office. "So many actors have passed through the thoroughfare this Summer." said Ben Stern yesterday, "that they wore out the pavement."

The six hundred and fourth per-

The six hundred and fourth per-formance of "A Trip to Chinatown" took place at the Madison Square The-stre last night, and the record of long runs was thus broken. The programmes were handsomely printed on yellowsatin, and souvenirs representing Bessic Clay-ton, in bronze, were distributed. It was an exceedingly joyous occasion.

"New compositions by Stephen Heller and Ferdinand Hiller," advertises

London music publisher. Heller died in 1886, and Hiller in 1888. This reminds a commentator of Gilbert's reply to the ignoramus who asked, "Is Bach composing any more ?" "No," answered Gilbert, "he is now de-composing."

Gilbert, "he is now de-composing."

Edward Corbett, who has been business manager at the Fourteenth Street. Theatre and Bijou for a long time? is going to manage "Blue Jeans" next season, and "Blue Jeans" is in luck, for it will have a bright and conscientious pilot. Mr. Corbett is the author of a farce comedy that will be played next season, and he wrote a couple of songs that were sung in "A Society Fad." Then he was largely responsible for the excellent work that was done for Denman Thompson at the Academy of Music, and for the various attractions that were seen at Niblo's. Corbett is a very young man, and a very meek one, but he is a hard worker and is brimming over with sincerity.

W. A. Conkiin bought the big bear his wild animal emporium at One Hundred and Eighty-sixth street and Tenth avenue, from an Italian, who had made a snug little fortune exhibiting bruin as menced tunnelling his way out through the soft ground.

Three policemen from the Kingsbridge station, fearing that the angry brute might upset his cage, and thus gain his liberty at once, considered it unsafe to attack him with revolvers.

It was at this point that Leonard made his advent and signalized the great advantage of a prairie training by unhesitatingly opening fire upon bruin with a Winchester repeating rifle.

It took three shots to kill the animal, which had become wild from grief at the loss of its old master.

More Internal Dissensions in the A. A. U. Ranks.

Cleverly Contested Bouts at the Coney Island Athletic Club,

Sooner or later there will be mighty kick in the ranks of the A. A J., and it will be of such potency that if disintegration of the Union followed Constant dripping of the water is bound to wear the stone away Every season of late years has seen a row of greater or less extent. These rows have nearly all sprung up between parent organization. But the Union has invariably come out victorious, an prospective kickers have deliberated considerably before locking horns with the officials of the parent body. A reg ular knock-down-and-drag-out seance was recently the experience of the At lantic Association in its little contro versy with the big three, Curtis, Sull

Now the Central Association, which ncludes a dozen Western athletic asso ciations in its membership, has struck Committee reconsidered its action recommended Yerkes's reinstateme. Last night's boxing entertainment at the Coney Is'and Athletic Club was by far the most enjoyable it has held in many months. The three bouts furfar the most enjoyable it has held ir many months. The three bouts furnished by Butler and Daly, Ernst and Vernon, and Leonard and Reynolds were all capitally contested, and afforded the immense crowd in attendance of full measure of enjoyment. Referee P. J. Donohue started the programme with the Leonard-Reynolds affair. They were booked for ten rounds at 130 pounds for a purse of $500. After eight rounds of fair work, which was about evenly divided, Leonard landed a right-hander or Rewnolds's law, and they nicked him.

Vernon's jaw and followed it up with a venomous right-hand upper short-arm slug just below Vernon's heart. It lifted him off his feet, and he fell to the floor limp and bedragged. He was clean out, and Referee Donohue was in no dilemma about the decision. llemma about the decision.

Then came Butler, the colored sviathan of Philadelphia, and Jim haly, who was supposed to have learned lot from Jim Corbett, whose sparring artner Daly used to be. They battled or $2,500, at 160 pounds, and whoever inished his opponent first was to capure $2,000 of the $2,500. The big darky aught the fat end of the purse in the lixth round, but he had to do a heap of fightling to get it.

as he was from knock-down after knock-down, Butler finally dealt him the decisive blow, which floored him for good and all as far as the purse was concerned. Referee Johnny Eckhardt was particularly active and efficient in this bout in preventing Butler from fouling Daly, which might easily have happened, as Daly was so often on the floor. The show proves that boxing between well-known local pugilists is more successful than many bouts between the men with international reputations.
